

Insolvency litigation is our sweet spot. Many top insolvency lawyers don't know how to litigate; on the flip side, many litigators don't know bankruptcy. Our firm and our attorneys know both and do both well. Bast Amron's insolvency litigation practice concentrates on litigation arising out of or related to bankruptcy and insolvency cases. Members of this practice group have represented clients in bankruptcy adversary proceedings, contested matters, plan disputes and all types of insolvency-related litigation. Often our clients are the trustees, creditors' committees, and other fiduciaries charged with finding recoveries for creditors, but our clients also include debtors, creditors, or other stakeholders. Our attorneys have investigated, prosecuted, and defended fraudulent transfers, preferential transfers, director and officer liability claims, professional negligence, dischargeability, and successor liability actions. We have extensive trial experience, having conducted many trials and evidentiary hearings as well as investigations in connection with bankruptcy cases. Members of the firm also have briefed and argued appeals from bankruptcy court decisions in the appellate courts.
